

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of controlling removal of photoresist in openings of a photoresist mask has the steps of obtaining in a scanning electron microscope a video signal of a bottom of an opening of a photoresist mask, and comparing values of the video signal in different points of an image which contains the opening to be controlled.